REMARKS

50X1-HUM

1. The former Luftwaffe torpedo test plant is north of Gdynia (Q 55/Y 44), near the Oxhoeft village, and at the southern edge of the airfield on the coast of the Baltic Sea.
2. Of the three workshops, each 40 meters long, and located on the shore, one was burned down, one was vacant, and the third one was used as an automobile garage for the Hexengrund airfield. The Polish Navy started the reconstruction of two workshops, but stopped all activities after a short period. Another plant section with test stands and launching devices in the sea, about 100 meters from the shore, was not used and partly burned out. The bridges leading to this section were burned and blasted.
3. Activities indicating torpedo tests at the plant were not observed.
